Indiana Folk Arts: 200 Years of Tradition and Innovation Traveling Exhibit and Folk Arts Events

For more than 200 years, Indiana has been home to a wide variety of folk arts. In celebration of the state's Bicentennial, a special traveling exhibit and related programming has been developed by MMWC's Traditional Arts Indiana program (a partnership of Indiana University Bloomington and the Indiana Arts Commission). The exhibit and programs explore the stories of specific artists and their work in the continuation of traditional arts in the state. Made possible through grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Indiana Humanities Council, Indiana Folk Arts will travel to state parks, public libraries, festivals, and other events that commemorate the state's Bicentennial. At each venue, the exhibit will host demonstrations, narrative stages, and hands-on workshops.
